

HispanTV: The Iranian Regime's Antisemitic Hatemongering Outlet in Latin America

Executive Summary

HispanTV, the Islamic Republic of Iran's Spanish-language propaganda outlet, is the leading platform peddling antisemitic hate and disseminating anti-Israel prejudice and incitement across Latin America and the wider Spanish-speaking world.

This report analyzes HispanTV's content between August 2024 and December 2025, a period marked by a significant escalation in hateful rhetoric following Hamas's October 7, 2023 attack on Israel. While ADL previously documented HispanTV's fundamental alignment with the Iranian regime's propaganda in a July 2024 assessment,¹ this new investigation reveals that the network has since doubled down on its efforts. The findings reveal that HispanTV uses multiple platforms to glorify designated terrorist groups and spread modernized antisemitic tropes to geopolitical audiences.

Specifically, HispanTV's content:

- Recycles long-standing antisemitic tropes about Jewish and Zionist power
- Depicts Israel as the center of global conspiracy and deception
- Legitimizes and glorifies violent extremist organizations
- Celebrates the October 7 attacks as legitimate and praiseworthy
- Elevates the Iranian regime as a moral and strategic alternative to Western democracies
- Systematically delegitimizes Israel's very right to exist

As this report demonstrates, the failure of governments, international organizations, corporations, and others to take meaningful action against HispanTV has allowed the Iranian regime to export its hateful and violent conspiracies around the world. If this threat is not seriously addressed, the result will likely be the radicalization of Spanish-speaking audiences across Latin America and beyond.

HispanTV's Hatemongering in Latin America

HispanTV, one of the media outlets run by US-designated² Islamic Republic of Iran Broadcasting corporation (IRIB), targets the world's nearly 600 million Spanish speakers through satellite,³ cable,⁴ livestreaming,⁵ the internet,⁶ and over quarter million followers on social media.⁷

Between August 2024 and December 2025, HispanTV systematically published content advancing a series of interrelated ideological frames: antisemitic tropes about Jewish or "Zionist" power, conspiracy narratives, delegitimization of the State of Israel, glorification of the Iranian regime's terrorist proxies, including Hamas and Hezbollah, and whitewashing of the regime and its "Axis of Resistance."⁸

Across news articles, opinion pieces, and editorialized "analysis programs," HispanTV constructs an information ecosystem that normalizes extremist frameworks, reframes antisemitic narratives as legitimate political critique, and positions violent extremists as moral agents resisting an alleged global Zionist threat. This ecosystem operates by weaving together classical antisemitic canards with modern geopolitical grievances, creating a seamless narrative where local political events are interpreted through the lens of a global Zionist conspiracy. Crucially, the site's discourse tends to move in a predictable sequence: first establishing an overarching theory of "Zionist power" as the hidden driver of politics, then depicting information and cultural systems as captured by that power and finally positioning armed "Resistance" actors—and the Islamic Republic's regional role—as the necessary corrective to a supposedly overarching Zionist order.

 8. It is important to note that HispanTV's online platform overflows with anti-Jewish and anti-Israel hate content, far beyond what is documented in this report.

HispanTV columnists and journalists spread conspiracies, falsehoods, myths, and disinformation in several key categories:

- 1. Antisemitic Tropes About Jewish and “Zionist” Power
- 2. Glorification of Palestinian Terrorism
- 3. Glorification of the Iranian Regime’s Terrorist Proxies
- 4. Glorification of the October 7 Attacks
- 5. Selective Visibility of Antisemitic Violence: HispanTV’s Coverage of Major Attacks Against Jews in 2025
- 6. Conspiracy Theories about Jewish/Israeli Control and Manipulation of the Media, News, and Minds

This report provides a selection of HispanTV excerpts to illustrate the hate and misinformation spread by the Iranian regime’s Spanish-language propaganda outlet and includes policy recommendations to mitigate the threat. The 1994 bombing of the Argentine Israelite Mutual Association (AMIA) Jewish community center in Buenos Aires by the Iranian regime’s Lebanon-based terror proxy Hezbollah⁹ and other realized or thwarted attacks are grim reminders of the concrete threat that the Islamic Republic of Iran and its terror proxies has posed to Jewish and Israeli individuals and institutions in the region.

1. Antisemitic Tropes About Jewish and “Zionist” Power

One of the most pervasive themes in HispanTV’s coverage is the depiction of Jews or “Zionists,” (a euphemism the Iranian regime often uses to refer to global Jewry to avoid accusations of antisemitism), as possessing vast, secretive, and malevolent global power—a trope deeply rooted in antisemitism. Rather than treating Zionism as a political movement, HispanTV frames it as an omnipresent, evil force that operates above and behind national governments, stripping them of their agency. In this construction, “Zionism” functions less as an ideology than as an overarching actor—an explanatory shortcut used to connect otherwise unrelated institutions, events, and policy outcomes into a single, intentional plot.

1.1. The “Zionist global dominance” frame

This narrative framework relies on historical inversion—claiming a moral equivalency between contemporary Jewish political life and Nazism and the Holocaust as part of an attempt to delegitimize Israel while laundering antisemitic motifs through the euphemism of “Zionism.”

In a series of opinion pieces posted on the HispanTV website, beginning with *“The Nazi–Zionist Alliance – Part I,”*¹⁰ Pablo Jofré Leal, a radical Chilean commentator who is a “super-spreader”¹¹ known for pushing anti-Western talking points on behalf of Moscow and Tehran,¹² advances a continuity claim that the “alliance between Zionism and Nazism never ended,” and frames Israeli policy as a planned “Final Solution” analogue. The article asserts that Zionism “replicates the processes of persecution, racial hatred, and policies of material and physical annihilation” associated with Hitler’s National Socialism, while deploying dehumanizing imagery—e.g., Palestinians described as “animals that walk on two legs”—to imply a foundational similarity between Israeli practice and Nazi ideology. Part II of the series¹³ seeks to present the 1933 Ha’avara (transfer) agreement¹⁴ as foundational evidence of Nazi–Zionist collaboration, and uses it to argue that Zionism historically benefited from—and helped operationalize—Nazi-era policies of Jewish emigration. The article also portrays German–Israeli relations, reparations, and the institutionalization of Holocaust memory as mechanisms that “fortify” Zionism and sustain a global victimhood narrative that shields Israel from criticism. Taken together, Parts I and II operationalize a “global dominance” framework: first, the author moralizes the conflict by casting Israel as the heir to the Nazis; second, they historicize that moral claim via selective episodes and institutional narratives.

14. A Yad Vashem study defines Ha’avarah as follows: “In the summer of 1933, the Jewish Agency for Palestine, the German Zionist Federation, and the German Economics Ministry drafted a plan meant to allow German Jews emigrating to Palestine to retain some of the value of their property in Germany by purchasing German goods for the Yishuv, which would redeem them in Palestine local currency.” Yfaat Weiss, “The Transfer Agreement and the Boycott Movement: A Jewish Dilemma on the Eve of the Holocaust,” Yad Vashem, <https://www.yadvashem.org/articles/academic/the-transfer-agreement.html>

1.2. Depicting Jews/Zionists as suppressors of truth

Complementing the domination frame is the claim that “truth” is structurally incompatible with Zionism and therefore must be suppressed. In *“The Fear of the Zionists for the Truth,”*¹⁵ Juan Alberto Sánchez Marín uses a classical antisemitic trope about control and power to portray Zionism as an inherently deceptive project grounded in “religious distortion” and “historical falsification.” The author claims that Zionism “reinterprets a spiritual longing and accommodates it to its convenience as a political mandate,” describing it as an “avaricious project” (avaricioso proyecto) wherein “Zionist distortion of faith ... eats away at the ideological base.”

Two narrative frames are especially salient. First, the article frames Zionist influence as comprehensive and quasi-total—extending beyond state institutions into culture, digital infrastructure, and journalism—explicitly attributing this to financial manipulation. Sánchez Marín asserts that “considerable economic and financial strength has allowed Zionism to modify ... the perspectives with which the West looks at reality,” adding that “money is what there is” (porque plata es lo que hay). He claims that Zionist “capitals have appropriated, control, or at least influence global information flows,” allowing them to “determine points of view, shape entertainment structures ... [and] monitor every media corner,” thereby encouraging readers to treat mainstream reporting as presumptively captured.

Second, the article presents censorship as the inevitable “last resort” of Zionism, linking alleged restrictions on journalists and major media outlets (“AP, Reuters or CNN”) as purported evidence of Zionist panic. Finally, the piece links “truth-suppression” to a broader moral inversion in which Israel is presented as uniquely dependent on victimhood narratives: it asserts that Israel convinced “half the world” that it was the victim of Palestinian violence, but that post-October 7 events “established... that the Zionists are the perpetrators.” This dual depiction further demonstrates that HispanTV’s discourse normalizes conspiratorial thinking and primes audiences to view institutional checks, journalistic norms, and initiatives against antisemitism as components of a Zionist cover-up.

1.3. Jewish/Zionist control of Western institutions

Multiple HispanTV articles portray a monolithic “Zionist lobby” manipulating governments, media, and corporations—an updated version of the trope of “Jewish global control.” This framing serves to delegitimize democratic institutions by suggesting they are merely puppets of Jewish interests.

The pattern is particularly stark in how HispanTV explicitly references “Jewish power” as a global force, by presenting it as the way certain influencers around the world refer to the “power of Zionism.” In “How Does Netanyahu’s MAGA Influencer Ecosystem Operate Amid the Genocide in Gaza?”¹⁶ the article starts with the following sentence: “The Zionist regime is responding to a growing trend among Make America Great Again (MAGA) supporters of what is called ‘noticing’, a phenomenon that highlights the power of Zionism, or, as they tend to express it, the power of the Jews.”

15. Juan Alberto Sánchez Marín, “El miedo de los sionistas a la verdad,” HispanTV, March 2025, <https://www.hispantv.com/noticias/opinion/617343/miedo-sionistas-verdad>

16. David Miller, “¿Cómo opera el ecosistema de influencers MAGA de Netanyahu en medio del genocidio en Gaza?,” HispanTV, May 14, 2025, <https://www.hispantv.com/noticias/opinion/614947/escosistema-influencers-maga-netanyahu-genocidio-gaz>

Examples of this pattern of the power of Zionism include “The United Kingdom Bows to Zionist Lobby Pressure,”¹⁷ alleging that British medical regulators act under “Zionist intimidation networks,” and “Brazilian Zionist Lobby Attempts to Silence Crimes in Gaza,”¹⁸ which claims that pro-Israel Jewish organizations control political discourse and judicial debate in Brazil.

This narrative often descends into overt dehumanization. The article “Zionism and Its Objectives to Take Over the State”¹⁹ employs particularly dehumanizing language, stating that “Zionist ideology puts its claws” into Chilean state institutions. The article questions the loyalty of Jewish public officials in Chile, using the term “Goyim,”²⁰ conspiratorially to claim concerning one such Jewish official, “His condition, used as a shield, of being a Jewish believer... should make us reflect on the interests that move around taking over state institutions by elements that do not generate confidence in defending those who are Goyim—non-Jews.” This antisemitic trope of dual loyalty²¹ suggests that Jews cannot be trusted in positions of power because they prioritize Israel over their own countries.

Furthermore, “Zionist Lobby Silences Australian Senator for Praising Iranian Women”²² claims that an Australian senator was forced to distance herself from an Iran event due to “Zionist lobby” pressure that has ‘eradicated even the slightest possibility of balanced dialogue.’”

These articles collectively advance the idea that “Zionists”—i.e. Jews—control global politics, culture, and information flows, echoing classical antisemitic tropes.

1.4. Zionist infiltration and covert networks

HispanTV’s program Palestine Declassified aired an episode titled “Global Zionist Infiltration: Mechanisms and Networks of Influence,”²³ which alleges a far-reaching web of Zionist penetration into media, think tanks, and Western political structures.²⁴ The program claims Zionists wield a level of hidden influence “unmatched by any other global actor.” This framing reduces complex political and institutional life to one hidden “Zionist” plot, treating standard disagreement and debate as proof of “infiltration” and control.

1.5. "Organ Harvesting": Modern-Day blood libel

A recurring antisemitic structure in HispanTV's discourse is the modernization of the blood libel: the claim that the "Zionist regime" —profits from, traffics in, or desecrates the bodies of non-Jews. This motif appears repeatedly in articles alleging systematic organ harvesting from Palestinian corpses, including "Israel Mutilates Organs from Gaza Corpses,"²⁵ where Humaira Ahad claims, "it has also been discovered that [Israel] is involved in organ harvesting," reproducing Hamas statements: "On December 26, Gaza authorities said the regime had again mutilated and harvested organs from Palestinians, most of them young men, killed by the Israeli army during the recent ground aggression."

In "The Harvest of Horror: Israel Continues Stealing Organs from Mutilated Palestinian Corpses,"²⁶ Maryam Qarehgozlou claims, "Revelations about Israel harvesting organs from kidnapped Palestinians and war victims for use in the international organ trade have persisted for decades." She then adds, "These findings transcend the war context, suggesting a disturbing commodification of Palestinian bodies even in times of relative calm, further underscoring the pattern of flagrant human rights violations."

The article, "Israeli Authorities Steal Organs from Corpses," reproduces a Hamas official's call for "the international community and human rights organizations to immediately form an international committee of inquiry to hold the Zionist regime accountable for 'the serious violations committed against the bodies of the martyrs and the theft of their organs.'"²⁷

Across these articles, unfounded allegations²⁸ of organ removal are presented as established practices intrinsic to Zionists/Jews, casting the alleged abuse as a defining, collective trait—thereby dehumanizing Jews and legitimizing hostility and violence against them.

2. Glorification of Palestinian Terrorism

A central narrative thread in HispanTV's coverage is a consistent championing of the so-called Palestinian "Resistance," specifically the terrorist groups Hamas²⁹ and the Palestinian Islamic Jihad.³⁰ Extremist violence is not merely reported on but celebrated as a moral imperative and as a sign of spiritual and military superiority. Notably, the "Resistance" motif functions as the positive pole of the ecosystem: after portraying Zionism as omnipotent and deceptive, HispanTV positions armed terrorists as both truth-telling and justice-making agents.

2.1. Terrorism as heroic, legitimate, and victorious

HispanTV's valorization of terrorist groups operates through a consistent rhetorical triad: (1) Moral elevation of terrorists (courage, sacrifice, "unprecedented bravery"); (2) Causal attribution of political outcomes (ceasefires, negotiations, withdrawals) to armed violence rather than diplomacy; and (3) Normalization of continued militarization as an ethical necessity. In this framework, armed struggle is not merely reported as a tactic—it is presented as the principal source of legitimacy and the decisive engine of history.

The news article *"The Resistance Praises Palestinian Sacrifice: 'The Truce Is No One's Gift'"*³¹ celebrates armed factions as the primary force compelling Israel into concessions and explicitly denies that political outcomes are externally mediated "gifts." The piece quotes the Palestinian Islamic Jihad asserting that, while it does "not deny Arab and international efforts," what "has been achieved" is fundamentally rooted in "the enormous sacrifices" of Palestinians and the "courage and valor" of fighters, who displayed "unprecedented bravery in combat," without which "the Resistance would not have been able to remain as a strong equal at the negotiating table." This is a key legitimating move: diplomacy is rhetorically subordinated to violence, and negotiation is framed as a reward for battlefield performance rather than a means to reduce harm. The article thus treats the ceasefire not as a de-escalatory outcome but as proof of the Resistance's strategic superiority and moral rightness.

This moralization is paired with explicit militarized threat-making. In the article titled " Hamas Carries Out Successful Ambushes as Israel Plans to Occupy Gaza,"³² HispanTV pairs the glorification of violence with explicit militarized threats. The article elevates Hamas militants as figures of "high morale," framing their operations not merely as tactical maneuvers but as "audacious ambushes" demonstrating "extraordinary examples of heroism and bravery." This narrative is underpinned by a dehumanization of the adversary—labeling Israeli officials as "Nazi ministers"—which serves to justify lethal force as a moral imperative to "teach harsh lessons" to the "invader." Consequently, the article positions violence as a desirable strategic instrument, warning that "Zionist soldiers will pay with their blood" and explicitly noting that such bloodshed is necessary to "increase the chances of capturing new soldiers" as leverage.

Finally, HispanTV presents permanent armed capacity as both inevitable and ethically justified. In the article “Hamas Says It Will Not Lay Down Its Arms or Leave Gaza,”³³ a Hamas official is quoted asserting that the Palestinian “Resistance will not lay down its arms” until the “complete liberation of Palestinian territory,” and that weapons would remain even after liberation “for self-defense.” This framing is critical because it transforms armed struggle from a contingent response into a standing political identity: disarmament is recast as illegitimate “blackmail,” and continued militarization is portrayed as the natural endpoint of righteousness rather than a security risk. As is the case with most similar news reports on HispanTV, this article is entirely focused on Hamas and Hamas quotes, to the exclusion of any other sources.

2.2. Terrorists as militarily superior to Israel

The article, “Zakaria Zubeidi, Icon of the Resistance Freed from Jenin and Israel’s Worst Nightmare,”³⁴ calls the released militant, who used to be the head of the terrorist-designated Al Aqsa Martyrs Brigade,³⁵ an “icon of the Intifada” and “freedom fighter,” describing his release as a “triumphant moment for Palestinian Resistance.” Another article, “Hamas: The West Bank Will Be the Next Battlefield with Israel,”³⁶ reports a Hamas official announcing that they are “still there, by the dozens, with their uniforms, with their new cars.”

The opinion piece “How Israel’s War Objectives Collapsed and the Resistance Prevailed”³⁷ portrays Palestinian terrorist groups as not only morally justified but strategically victorious, claiming they “defeated Israel both militarily and politically.” HispanTV’s “victory” rhetoric is important because by reframing protracted violence as both effective and inevitable, it communicates that armed resistance is not only ethically warranted but instrumentally successful, encouraging audiences to interpret ongoing conflict as a story of impending Zionist collapse.

2.3. Terrorist leaders framed as truth-tellers and victims of Zionist lies

The episode of the TV show Dice Israel, “Narrative of the Zionists—The Lie About Mohammed al-Deif,”³⁸ dismisses reports of the Hamas commander’s death as “Zionist fabrications,” portraying him as both heroic and central to legitimate resistance. Here, the informational and militarized narratives collapse into one another: the alleged “Zionist lie” becomes a battlefield, and the militant figure becomes a moral symbol whose survival signifies the endurance of the cause.

38. “La Narrativa Sionista Y Las Repercusiones De La Mentira De La Ocupación Sobre El Asesinato De ‘Mohammed Al-Deif,’” HispanTV, July 19, 2024, <https://www.hispantv.com/showepisode/dice-israel/narrativa-sionista-mentira-mohammed-aldeif/66949>

This narrative strategy extends into active glorification of terrorism. HispanTV systematically reframes internationally designated terrorists as “martyrs” (mártires) and “heroes” engaged in “legitimate reprisal.” For instance, in an article detailing the death of Abu Sharia,³⁹ the founder of the Mujahideen Brigades, a US-designated terrorist organization based in the Palestinian territories,⁴⁰ the outlet reproduces a statement praising his participation in “numerous heroic battles” where he “caused great casualties to the enemy.” The text emphasizes his resilience against “five assassination attempts” and frames his violence as a lifelong spiritual commitment, emphasizing that “nothing prevented him from continuing.”

Furthermore, the rhetoric explicitly justifies continued violence as a moral obligation. The same article asserts that the “crime of assassination committed by the cowardly Zionist enemy ... will not remain unanswered and they will soon pay a high price,” positioning future attacks as necessary acts of justice rather than terrorism. By highlighting that Abu Sharia “offered more than 150 martyrs” from his own family, the narrative sanctifies mass death and total warfare as the ultimate expression of the Palestinian political will.

Across these categories of articles glorifying Palestinian terrorism, actions by militants are framed as the only moral and effective pathway in the face of a “genocidal” Israeli state, normalizing violent extremism as legitimate self-defense and acts in the service of national liberation. The broader logic is clear: once institutions and media are defined as Zionist-controlled, violence becomes narratively repositioned as the only remaining form of political agency.

3. Glorification of the Iranian Regime's Terrorist Proxies

HispanTV further legitimizes the Islamic Republic's “Axis of Resistance” by praising the Iranian regime's terrorist proxies—most prominently the Lebanese proxy Hezbollah and the Yemeni proxy Ansar Allah (also known as the Houthis)—as disciplined and morally grounded forces whose violence is portrayed as defensive, strategic, and historically necessary.

3.1. Glorification of Hezbollah

HispanTV consistently portrays Hezbollah as a legitimate resistance force and moral actor defending Lebanon and supporting the Palestinian cause.

39. HAMAS confirma asesinato del líder de Muyahidín por Israel en Gaza,” HispanTV, June 8, 2025, <https://www.hispantv.com/noticias/palestina/616419/israel-asesinato-lider-muyahidin>

The article, “Hezbollah Leader: ‘Resistance Will Continue Until Final Victory,’”⁴¹ quotes Hezbollah leadership declaring, “The Resistance will continue until final triumph and complete annihilation of the occupants. No power in the world can stop the will of the Islamic Ummah.” Another piece, “Hezbollah: Israel Is Playing with Fire in Southern Lebanon,”⁴² states that “Hezbollah assures that the Resistance will never surrender” describing the “Axis of Resistance” standing firm against Israel and the West. Similarly, “Hezbollah Leader: Resistance Continues Its Path”⁴³ praises the October 7 attacks, stating that Hezbollah played a “primary role in Gaza’s victory” and will remain a “strong fortress” of resistance.

In the article, “Fragments from Nasrallah’s Speech That Shook the Israeli Regime,”⁴⁴ the text explicitly glorifies armed militancy by revering fallen commanders as “founding fathers” and asserting that the movement has been “enriched with the blood” of its fighters, thereby framing martyrdom as a source of strength rather than loss. This narrative delegitimizes Israel by consistently labeling it as a “criminal Zionist state” rather than a sovereign nation. Consequently, the piece establishes a moral imperative for violence, arguing that “every honorable person must confront the enemy” and that the only acceptable outcome for the Resistance is the total “annihilation of the regime.”

In addition, HispanTV frequently frames Hezbollah’s violence in terms of its coercive effects on Israeli civilian infrastructure and public life—panic, shutdowns, and disruption—thereby rendering escalation as a strategically productive achievement. “Hezbollah causes panic: Israel activates 240 air-raid shelters”⁴⁵ underscores the activation of shelters, closures of beaches and cultural institutions, and the shutdown of Ben Gurion Airport. The piece notes that Hezbollah launched “320 Katyusha missiles” and that drones “advanced successfully toward the targets, according to the defined plan,” language that frames the mass attack as an operational success and casts public disruption as a measure of achievement rather than harm.

Similarly, in “Images: Tel Aviv in flames after Hezbollah’s massive missile attack,”⁴⁶ which describes explosions “shaking” Tel Aviv and says Ben Gurion Airport “had to suspend flights due to chaos and fear,” the framing presents fear and disrupted infrastructure as signs of Hezbollah’s “high destructive power.” It pushes readers to see the attack as proof of strength and credibility, rather than as a dangerous escalation that destabilizes civilians’ lives.

3.2 Glorification of the Houthis

HispanTV celebrates Houthi attacks on Israeli and international targets as acts of solidarity with Palestinians and portrays the Houthi terrorists as heroic resistance fighters.

The article, “Yemen Attacks Ben Gurion Airport in Tel Aviv, Leaving at Least 8 Injured,”⁴⁷ celebrates the Houthi missile attack on Ben Gurion Airport on May 4, 2025, quoting a Houthi leader stating the attack “is proof of our power.” Another article, “Yemen Attacks Israeli Targets with a Missile with ‘Multiple Warheads,’”⁴⁸ celebrates Yemen’s “hypersonic missile” with “multiple warheads,” describing it as a successful military operation demonstrating Yemeni technological capabilities. Similarly, “Missile Launch from Yemen Drives Israelis to Shelters”⁴⁹ celebrates a Yemeni missile launch that “forced Israelis to shelters,” framing the attack as a psychological victory.

In “Yemen intensifies the air blockade on Israel: Attacks Ben Gurion Airport,”⁵⁰ HispanTV foregrounds the claim that Yemen carried out “a high-precision military operation” using a “hypersonic ballistic missile,” and emphasizes that the strike caused “millions of Zionists” to flee to shelters while airport activity was “paralyzed.”

Relatedly, “No free flight: Yemen launches a new attack against Ben Gurion Airport”⁵¹ normalizes repeated strikes as an emerging routine, explicitly celebrating that “the operation achieved its objective successfully,” producing mass flight to shelters and the “paralysis” of airport operations. It further presents the denial of “free flights” in Israeli airspace as a legitimate policy instrument so long as the Gaza war continues, converting ongoing missile attacks into an enduring and normalized tool of coercive pressure.

The article “‘Al-Houthi Is the Modern Che Guevara’: Yemeni Armed Forces Are Unstoppable”⁵² reports that a US magazine, The Atlantic, called Houthis “heroes” and their leader the “modern Che Guevara,” describing the Yemeni military as “unstoppable,” conveniently leaving out references to “the Houthis’ weaknesses,” including the fact that their government is “incompetent and bankrupt,” and their description as a “volatile and reckless” force.⁵³ HispanTV maintains a dedicated page glorifying Houthi leader Abdulmalik al-Houthi⁵⁴ with multiple articles praising his “qualitative military achievements” against Israel and the West.

4. Glorification of the October 7 Attacks

HispanTV consistently frames Hamas's October 7, 2023 attacks as legitimate and praiseworthy acts of resistance worthy of celebration. This reframing is essential to the channel's ideological project, converting mass violence into a foundational myth of liberation.

"Al-Aqsa Storm Is an Extraordinary Achievement for Palestinians"⁵⁵ describes the operation as "impressive" and an "extraordinary achievement," celebrating the attacks as a Palestinian victory.

"Hamas Defends Al-Aqsa Storm; 'History Didn't Begin on October 7'"⁵⁶ reports a Hamas official defending the operation stating that "October 7, 2023 was an act of defense, fulfilling the duty to raise the voice of [our] people in the face of oppression."

"Hamas Praises Sinwar's Legacy: Al-Aqsa Storm's Flames Will Not Be Extinguished"⁵⁷ lionizes the Hamas leader killed during the war, stating, "The flame of the 'Al-Aqsa Storm' will always remain lit, burning with the spirit of insistence on rights, principles, and national unity, and its fire in the heart of our great nation will never be extinguished."

"Hamas Gives New Details About Al-Aqsa Storm: There Will Be More Surprises"⁵⁸ reports Hamas threatening Israel with new surprises while describing Palestinian fighters continuing "fierce and heroic confrontations," treating the ongoing violence as a continuation of the October 7 "achievement."

"Persian Politician: Tsunami of 'Al-Aqsa Storm' Swept Away All of Israel"⁵⁹ quotes an Iranian regime official describing the October 7 operation as "a tsunami that swept away in one day" all the "occupied Palestinian territories" [i.e. Israel], celebrating the attacks as having "destroyed the future of the Zionist entity."

5. Selective Visibility of Antisemitic Violence: HispanTV's Coverage of Major Attacks Against Jews in 2025

HispanTV's broader discourse often accuses "Zionist" networks of using charges of antisemitism as a political ploy. Therefore, an examination of its handling of high-profile, factual anti-Jewish attacks is a useful analysis. In 2025, several widely reported incidents (Boulder in June, the killing of two individuals outside the Jewish museum in Washington, DC in May, and the Yom Kippur synagogue attack in Manchester in October) appear to have no easily retrievable coverage on HispanTV, suggesting selective visibility around prominent cases of Jews being targeted as Jews. At the same time, HispanTV did cover the December 2025 attack on a Hanukkah-related Jewish event in Sydney, but the framing emphasized the heroism of a bystander and avoided any mention of the antisemitic motivations behind the attack.⁶⁰ Overall, this pattern suggests HispanTV downplays antisemitism as a clear and consistent explanation, which helps sustain its broader claim that accusations of antisemitism are mainly a "Zionist" political tool.

6. Conspiracy Theories about Jewish/Israeli Control and Manipulation of the Media, News, and Minds

A common pattern in HispanTV's news coverage is the depiction of Jews and Israelis as operating a highly organized global disinformation apparatus designed to deceive the world and justify genocide. This effectively immunizes the audience against any information that contradicts the channel's narrative, dismissing it preemptively as Zionist fabrication.

6.1. Western media allegedly co-opted by Zionist interests

In "Netflix Bows to Zionist Pressure and Removes Palestinian Films,"⁶¹ HispanTV claims that Netflix was pressured by "Zionist censorship networks that dictate what narratives can circulate globally," presenting the media platform as an extension of Zionist influence over culture and information.

The 2025 article, "Under Pressure, TikTok Appoints a 'Zionist' to Censor Pro-Palestine Content,"⁶² similarly asserts that TikTok's moderation decisions are driven by Zionist influence, claiming the platform is "complicit in erasing Palestinian voices."

"Corporate Media in the West, Bribed by Zionist Influence"⁶³ makes the sweeping claim that "the global Zionist elite... owns most US and European media corporations or influences them through financing and bribes." Such assertions are examples of the classic trope of Jewish ownership and manipulation of the press.

6.2. "Hasbara" as a Global Psychological Operation

In "Israel Intensifies Its Propaganda and Allocates $150 Million to Cover Up the Genocide,"⁶⁴ Hasbara is explicitly framed as a propaganda euphemism that inverts victimhood: "According to Zionist observers, Hasbara functions as a euphemism for propaganda, distorting facts to present the occupying regime as a victim, while portraying the occupied Palestinians as aggressors." This combines two common themes in HispanTV's messaging—claiming that "Zionists"/Israel control the narrative and flipping victim and aggressor—so readers are primed to dismiss outside reporting about Israel and Palestinians as Zionist propaganda before they even consider it.

The 2025 opinion piece "Zionism, Genocide and Its Hasbara Policy"⁶⁵ argues that Israel runs a global propaganda system "designed to normalize genocide," linking Israeli public diplomacy with a coordinated international psychological operation campaign.

"Antisemitism, the Eternal Wild Card of the 'False Semites'"⁶⁶ goes further by attempting to delegitimize the very concept of antisemitism, arguing that antisemitism is a "political gimmick fabricated by false Semites to silence critics of Israel" and that the term "antisemitism" itself has become "a tool of manipulation." This narrative reframes antisemitism as a Zionist conspiracy, which is used to silence criticism of Israel.

Conclusion

HispanTV's content from July 2024 to December 2025 systematically propagates a cohesive ideological narrative that:

- Recycles long-standing antisemitic tropes about Jewish and Zionist power, explicitly referencing "the power of the Jews" and presenting Jews as manipulating global media, controlling Western governments through "lobbies," and operating as a malevolent force with their "claws" (garras in Spanish) in state institutions.
- Depicts Israel as the center of global conspiracy and deception, alleging control over social media platforms (TikTok, X) and international information flows through Jewish billionaires and "bribed" Western media corporations.
- Legitimizes and glorifies violent extremist organizations, portraying Hamas, Hezbollah, and the Houthis as resistance forces showing "extraordinary examples of heroism and bravery," celebrating attacks that killed civilians, and promising continued violence until the "complete annihilation of the occupants."
- Celebrates the October 7 attacks as legitimate and praiseworthy, describing them as "impressive" and "extraordinary" achievements, a "tsunami" that swept away Israel, with "flames" that "will never be extinguished."
- Elevates the Iranian regime as a moral and strategic alternative to Western democracies, positioning Tehran as the defender of truth and justice and the strategic center of the "Axis of Resistance."
- Systematically delegitimizes Israel's very right to exist, framing the state as colonialist, genocidal, a "terrorist project," and fundamentally illegitimate.

Policy Recommendations

This report, like ADL's 2024 report "HispanTV: The Iranian Regime's Long Arm of Hate in Latin America,"⁶⁷ shows how HispanTV disseminates and amplifies anti-Jewish hatred, incites violence, glorifies terrorism, and engages in disinformation, conspiracy theories, and historical revisionism. Despite Spanish satellite company Hispasat dropping⁶⁸ HispanTV from its service in December 2013 and YouTube blocking⁶⁹ HispanTV's channel on multiple occasions, and fully banning the channel in February 2020, HispanTV's harmful messages still reach global audiences through a wide range of distribution channels, as listed in the report's Appendix.

Policymakers, media corporations, and digital platforms must concentrate on closing the loopholes which allow the Iranian regime to use HispanTV to disseminate its hate campaign to global audiences. To address these problems, ADL recommends that the following steps be taken:

- Just as Hispasat and YouTube have blocked HispanTV from their platforms, we urge all satellite companies—including Arabsat, Eutelsat, Intelsat, and Telstar—to consider whether continuing to host HispanTV aligns with their values and review their broadcasting policies to ensure they are not permitting content that violates their own procedures.
- Social media platforms should maintain Spanish-language content moderation teams with a priority directive to limit hateful rhetoric. Given the recent rise in antisemitism, there should be a greater focus on monitoring attacks on the global Jewish community and enforcing policies to address antisemitism on their platforms. Digital social spaces should ensure content moderation systems are fully capable of adhering to the legal requirements in their respective jurisdictions, and more importantly, ensure they uphold the platforms' own terms of service regarding hateful antisemitic content, such as that evidenced here from HispanTV.
- Where warranted, social media companies should deplatform HispanTV for its breach of their respective policies and community guidelines.
- Internet hosting companies should evaluate the implications of continuing to provide services for the HispanTV.com site. U.S. authorities seized⁷⁰ the .com domain of PressTV in June 2021 on the grounds that the site was controlled by the Iranian regime's Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps, yet HispanTV still uses its hispantv.com domain to broadcast globally.

- Government authorities should investigate the links between HispanTV and sanctioned Iranian regime entities and officials and consider designating HispanTV as a foreign state influence operation of the Islamic Republic of Iran.
- Finally, respected media organizations must unequivocally and publicly reject the heinous propaganda globally spewed by HispanTV and ensure that none of its false reporting makes its way into legitimate journalistic circles.

Appendix: Mapping HispanTV's Distribution Network

Global Satellite Distribution

HispanTV's signal is broadcast via 6 main satellites covering vast regions of the planet:⁷¹

- Arabsat (Badr 5) and Eutelsat (Hotbird 13B): Primary coverage for Europe, the Middle East, and North Africa
- Hispasat 30W-5: Coverage focused on Europe and the Americas⁷²
- Intelsat 21 and Galaxy 19: Coverage for the Americas (North, Central, and South)
- Telstar 12: Transatlantic coverage

Distribution by Country (Cable / DTH / IPTV)

The channel is distributed in at least 18 countries through local, community, and national cable operators.

South America (Largest Market)

This region has the highest penetration, with Colombia and Venezuela standing out for the sheer number of operators.

- Colombia: The country with the most extensive list of distributors. HispanTV is present in over 15 departments (including Antioquia, Bogotá, Bolívar, Boyacá, Caldas, Valle del Cauca, Santander, etc.) through dozens of local and community operators such as Global TV, HV Televisión, and multiple parabolic antenna associations.
- Venezuela: Massive nationwide presence through major operators (CANTV Satelital, Intercable, Netuno, Supercable) and a vast network of over 70 regional and community operators in states like Zulia, Barinas, Mérida, Táchira, and Greater Caracas.
- Bolivia: Strong presence with national operators like BoliviaTV (state channel) and TUVES HD, plus multiple regional cable operators in Santa Cruz, Beni, and other localities.
- Argentina: Distributed in provinces like Buenos Aires, Córdoba, Santa Fe, Neuquén, and Río Negro through cooperatives and local cable providers (e.g., Barricada TV, Cablevisión in some localities, InTV).

- Chile: Available through TUVES HD and local operators in Iquique and Biobío.
- Ecuador: Presence via ETAPATV, Tropicable, and various regional operators in Esmeraldas and Imbabura.
- Peru: Available on Cable Mágico (Movistar TV), one of the largest operators, as well as Best Cable and other regional providers.
- Paraguay: Operators such as TV Cable del Este, Mi Cable, and Cable Visión Caacupé.
- Uruguay: Available through Montecable.

Central America & The Caribbean

- Mexico: Specific presence on operators like Cablecom and Telecable.
- Cuba: Available through Multivisión.
- El Salvador: Wide regional coverage in departments like San Miguel, La Unión, and Usulután through local operators.
- Guatemala: Distribution in multiple municipalities (Escuintla, Sololá) through local cable operators.
- Costa Rica: Available on Cable Santos, Cable Brus, and Canal 50.
- Honduras: Operators such as Mayavision and Cable Color.
- Nicaragua: Available on Estesa.
- Dominican Republic: Presence on Telecable de Tricom and other local operators.

Europe & North America

- Spain: Specific distribution in Asturias through Telecable.
- United States: While traditional cable operator listings are limited due to sanctions, SES-owned Intelsat's Galaxy 19 covers North America.

Digital & Social Media Presence

Beyond traditional television, HispanTV actively promotes digital consumption across multiple platforms, including alternative video hosting sites:

- Streaming: Live signal available directly on their website and on Roku.
- Mobile App: Android application available for download.
